MEMORANDUM FOR: Chief of Operations

STATINTL

SUBJECT: Proposed Legislation to Establish a United States Academy of Foreign Service (H.R. 233, 84th Congress, 1st Session)

1. The comments of the Director of Training are useful. While it is not so much a question of facilitating our State integration program through the use of a Foreign Service Academy, it might improve the cover of some of our personnel who are integrated and it could also give us access to a pool of carefully selected and well educated candidates. If quota systems were established, as Mr. Baird suggested, we would want it so set up that we would not be compelled to take aboard more of the graduates of such an academy than were needed.

2. Redrafting of the proposed legislation, if it is to take into account the interests of this and certain other Federal Agencies, should specifically exclude certain of the features of the bill which now appear to have general application to all graduates. The "one year special study abroad" feature should be made more clearly applicable only to Foreign Service officers and it should not be mandatory with respect to those graduates who end up in other departments or agencies. As a matter of fact, the law should make it clear that, once a graduate has been assigned to another department, he no longer comes within the purview of this legislation but is assimilated entirely within the department to which he has been assigned. This same comment can be made with respect to the "one year in five" feature under which the bill makes it mandatory that graduates of the academy will spend one year in five at home except in time of war. This need not be applicable to other than the Foreign Service itself.

3. While it is an attractive thought that the Agency might some day be able to incorporate its representatives more or less permanently into the Foreign Service by choosing them early and arranging to have them take the Foreign Service Academy course, it is believed that the considerable restrictions which would apply in such cases to the Agency's ability to move such people from place to place at such times as suited its operational convenience, and the additional important question of loyalty and devotion to the Agency's objectives rather than to those of the cover agency, deserve careful consideration.

COMMENTS (From Original Addressee)

TO : LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL
OFFICE OF GENERAL COUNSEL
THRU: Chief, Operations, DD/P

FROM: Director of Training

1. H. R. 233 is of interest to CIA and further action by your Office is deemed necessary and desirable. It is believed that the language of section 7. of the bill should be amended to make it less restrictive in respect to availability of assignment of graduates to the proposed U. S. Academy of Foreign Service. As the bill is now written, graduates of the Academy would be made available to the Departments of State, Commerce, Agriculture and Treasury. It is the view of this Office that such graduates should be made available to appropriate departments and agencies of the government which have responsibilities for the conduct of activities overseas. In terms of the problems the Agency has connected with the integration of its personnel into the Foreign Service, it would seem that an allotment of graduates from an academy such as that proposed in the bill to the Agency would facilitate the integration problem. In view of the foregoing, it is recommended that the following be substituted at line 19 on page 5 for lines 19 through 25 on page 5 and lines 1 through 3 on page 6: "Second, to such other departments and agencies of the government which have responsibilities for the conduct of activities overseas, in accordance with a quota system to be negotiated with the Secretary of State and the heads of the departments and agencies of the government concerned."

2. This recommendation is being transmitted to you through Chief of Operations, DD/P, for his review and comment, since this is a matter which also pertains to his Office.
